GETTING STARTED

Creating an Inclusive Community

As a way to continue to promote positive engagement and experiences among our students, OSU is now requiring new students to complete an on-line course, Creating an Inclusive Community, that focuses on OSU's history and commitments to diversity and inclusion.

UHDS Diversity Initiatives & Programs

The Community Relations Facilitator program in UHDS promotes inclusive and welcoming communities in the residence halls, cooperative houses and dining facilities through workshops and programs. Facilitators are peer educators who work with student staff and student leaders.

Community Dialogues

Community Dialogues is a once-per-term series, which seeks to cultivate connection and deep learning through exploration of critical and contentious issues. Community Dialogues are open to all OSU community members and led by trained student facilitators.

Cultural Resource Center Programming

The Cultural Resource Centers (CRCs) provide opportunities for all members of the OSU community to learn about different cultures. Opportunities include history and heritage month programming, social justice workshops, and cultural celebrations.

GOING DEEPER

Alternative Breaks

Alternative Break trips are centered on creating transformative, experiential learning experiences. Through these trips, students develop the capacity to lead social change and immerse themselves in a community to learn its historical, sociocultural and political background.

Difference, Power & Discrimination Courses

Difference, Power and Discrimination (DPD) courses engage students in the intellectual examination of the complex structures, systems and ideologies that sustain discrimination and the unequal distribution of power and resources in society.

Global Diversity Initiatives

We serve as a bridge between various academic and administrative units on the Oregon State campus that support international students. We look for ways to cultivate a culturally competent, globally knowledgeable, inclusive and socially responsible student body.

Find a Club or Organization

Search among hundreds of student organizations for opportunities to better yourself and the world. Many clubs and organizations create meaningful and diverse opportunities for leadership and involvement that cultivate positive social change.

DEEP DIVES

Social Justice Retreats

There are several immersive retreat experiences at OSU that support social change and promote a campus dialogue about race and racism: Racial Aikido, Multiracial Aikido, International Student Social Justice Retreat, and Examining White Identity in a Multicultural World.

Social Justice Minor

The Social Justice minor is a set of interdisciplinary academic classes through which students think critically about local, national, and international issues of social justice and engage the work of social justice through experiential activities.

Office of Global Opportunities

The OSU Office of Global Opportunities (OSU GO) advises students on study abroad, international internships and global research. Numerous opportunities are available, and the OSU GO team can help you learn how to take your education abroad!

Oregon Multicultural & Queer Archives

The archives help preserve the histories and share the stories that document Oregon's African American, Asian American, Latino/a and Native American, and LGBTQ+ communities and their contributions to Oregon's identity; and are open to all OSU community members for inquiry.
